

Cal Q. Leight

This was during the Depression and the coach was making $250 a month, yet he was living in a penthouse and driving an expensive car, a LaSalle.

A friend asked how he did it and the coach said, "I sell 2,000 raffle tickets a month." His friend wondered, "What do you raffle off?" "My paycheck," the coach replied.

My pay check is safe for awhile. I went 15 for 21 last week, which gives me a season mark of 88-54. Now that's 61 percent and I want to thank a reader named Joel Perfecta for catching a mistake in my arithmetic last time out. Here's this week's results.
